FOREWORD

The ward profile contains the basic population counts at the ward level for every province. It is a series of publications produced directly from the 2011 National Population and Housing Census. It is a summary of the total population by sex including additional information on the number of households for every ward.

The wards are the lowest level of government administration under the local level government and the ward profile is a direct response to the rapid growth in demand for social and economic data particularly at the lower level of planning.

For census purposes, PNG was divided into a number of geographical areas to facilitate both the conduct for census and the dissemination of census data to users. The hierarchical structure begins with the province, followed by the district, local level government, ward and census unit (village). The lowest unit for census data collection is the census unit. The aggregated population counts at the census unit level make up the ward population counts as presented in this series of publications.

Conducting a population census is never an easy task given the geographical setting in the country. Such mammoth task demands collaborative efforts from all sectors of the community.

NSO is indebted to the National Government, national departments and line agencies, development partners, provincial administrations, community leaders and the general public in ensuring that the census was conducted successfully. The contribution of UNFPA in facilitating the engagement of a Data Processing Advisor is also acknowledged.
